

Sample (ξ): Presentation Rubric for Presenting a Project

Criterion	Rating Scale
	High	Average	Low
Project Idea	Project idea is linked to the course, and is also characterized by its significance, originality, and the ability to solve real-world problems	Project idea is linked to the course, but is not characterized by its significance, originality, and the ability to solve real-world problems	Project idea is not linked to the course, and is not characterized by its significance, originality, and the ability to solve real-world problems
Percentage: 10%
Project Implementation	Project was implemented on-ground, and all application procedures were shown via images and videos	Project was implemented on-ground, and some application procedures were shown via images and videos	Project was not implemented on-ground, and only some ready-made photos and videos about it were shown
Percentage: 10%
Project Results	Results are explained based on the use of scientific tools and the procedures for obtaining them	Results are explained based on the use of non-scientific tools and the procedures for obtaining them	Results are not explained and procedures for obtaining them are not clarified
Percentage: 10%
Comprehensiveness and Structure	Ideas and information are sequential, integrated and comprehensive for all aspects of the project, including: (objectives, significance, theoretical framework, implementation of procedures, and results)	Ideas and information are sequential, integrated and comprehensive for most aspects of the project, including: (objectives, significance, theoretical framework, implementation of procedures, and results)	Ideas and information are not sequential and not comprehensive for all aspects of the project, including: (objectives, significance, theoretical framework, implementation of procedures, and results)
Percentage: 20%
Design of Presentation Slides	Presentation slides are exceptionally and consistently designed in terms of font type, colors, images and graphics, and do not contain spelling and grammatical errors	Presentation slides are satisfactorily designed in terms of font type, colors, images and graphics, and contain some spelling and grammatical errors	Presentation slides are asymmetrically and unproportionally designed in terms of font type, colors, images and graphics, and contain many spelling and grammatical errors
Percentage: 10%
Communication and Body Language	Presenter's speech was characterized by effective eye contact, vocal clarity, expressive gestures and movements that indicate confidence and full understanding of the project	Presenter's speech was characterized by occasional eye contact, repeated reading of slides, vocal clarity, gestures and movements that indicate some tension	Presenter's speech was characterized by ineffective eye contact, reliance on reading the slides, vocal unclarity, gestures and movements that indicate tension and a lack of understanding of the project
Percentage: 10%
Time Management	Presentation time was effectively managed, and enough time was left for all questions and discussions related to the project	Presentation time was satisfactorily managed, and enough time was left for some questions and discussions related to the project	Presentation time was not effectively managed, and not enough time was left for all questions and discussions related to the project
Percentage: 10%

Note: The specified percentages in the forms are suggested percentages and may be adjusted by the faculty member in accordance with the objectives of the course